A patient engagement exercise was undertaken during November 2019, which was facilitated by general practice. The purpose of the exercise was to find out the experience and views of people accessing the currently commissioned services, to identify the valued aspects of services and areas for improvement, to inform the revised service model. Practices were asked to identify the patients, and send out the resources developed by the CCG. This included both digital and hard copies of a questionnaire, with the CCG co-ordinating the upload of responses and analysing all the data to report findings at city level and PCN level. The engagement model was developed to minimise the resource requirements from individual practices.

Unfortunately, response rates have not been high enough to draw conclusion or intelligence to inform service modelling.

As both the CCG and general practices have a legal and contractual requirement to involve patients in service change, it is proposed, following agreement at primary care communications sub group, that the engagement exercise be re-run as part of the mobilisation to inform future service models.
